

MISSIONS

The Goal or the Means to a Goal?

What does “God-Centered Missions” mean?

- ▣ It is intended to be a contrast with ideas like man-centered or need-centered.

“So the lesson we can draw from the Anthropic Principle is this: Someone must have gone to a lot of effort to make things just right so that you and I could be here to enjoy life. In short, modern science points to the fact that we must really matter to God!”
(Bill Hybels and Mark Mittelberg, Becoming A Contagious Christian, p. 14.)

- ▣ The label “God-centered Missions” aims to address a basic question about the ultimate purpose or goal of missions. Is missions primarily centered on man or on God? Or, to put it another way, Is missions an ultimate issue or is it a means to an ultimate goal?

- ▣ “Missions is not the ultimate goal of the church. Worship is. Missions exists because worship doesn’t. Worship is ultimate, not missions, because God is ultimate, not man. When this age is over, and the countless millions of the redeemed fall on their faces before the throne of God, missions will be no more. It is a temporary necessity. But worship abides forever” (John Piper, Let the Nations Be Glad!, p. 11).

THE PRINCIPLE OF GOD-CENTERED MISSIONS

- ▣ For all things are for your sakes, so that the grace which is spreading to more and more people may cause the giving of thanks to abound to the glory of God (2 Corinthians 4:15).
- ▣ A chain of purposes:
 1. for your sakes
 2. so that grace will spread
 3. the giving of thanks to abound
 4. to God's glory.

Let's make sure we are clear...

- ▣ This does not mean that no other goals exist.
- ▣ This does not mean that all other goals are unimportant.

THE PROOF OF GOD-CENTERED MISSIONS

- ▣ Our Response to the Gospel Promises Acknowledges God's Glory, 1:20
- ▣ The Spirit's Work through the Gospel Displays God's Glory, 3:7-11
- ▣ The Believer's Transformation Reflects God's Glory, 3:18
- ▣ The Center of the Gospel Message is God's Glory, 4:4-6

- ▣ The doxological focus of missions is confirmed by the fact that the proper response to God's promises (faith) is intricately joined to God's glory.
- ▣ The doxological focus of missions is confirmed by the fact that the work of missions can only be accomplished by the Spirit's power and the display of that power is intended to bring glory to God.
- ▣ The doxological purpose of missions is confirmed by the fact that God's eternal plan in redemption results in His glory displayed in the transformed lives of believers.
- ▣ The doxological purpose of missions is confirmed in the very message that is the heart of missions — that God's glory is revealed in Jesus Christ; therefore, He is Lord before whom all will bow, either now in repentance or later in judgment.

THE PRACTICAL IMPLICATIONS OF GOD-CENTERED MISSIONS

- ▣ The priority of missions must be faithfulness to God and His Word, not fruitfulness.
- ▣ The promotion of missions should be primarily based on God and His Glory, not man's needs.
- ▣ The practice of missions must be controlled by Scripture, not traditions or trends.
- ▣ The power for missions must be divine, not human.
